

The Social and Health Education Project

In this time of considerable uncertainty and change are you interested in learning about what leadership involves? Do you want to be better able to bring about positive change in your own community or the organisation in which you are involved? Do you know that leadership skills can be acquired and cultivated?

This new, part-time, largely experiential course delivered by The Social and Health Education Project, in association with CESCA, is commencing in January 2016 and may be of interest to you.

Leadership in the Community: An Introduction

QQI Accredited (Level 6) 15 FET credits

Cork City

January – June 2016

Tuesday Evenings & five Saturdays

An Innovative & Practical Course

This course will be of interest to a wide variety of people already involved in or preparing for leadership roles in a voluntary or paid capacity in Cork City. There will be four modules:

- Foundations of Community Leadership;
- Personal Leadership;
- Approaches & Skills for Leading Groups Creatively;
- The Practical Application of Community Leadership.

The course will be delivered by a number of experienced trainers and will include input from guest speakers as well as projects visits.

Open Access

This is an open-access course but candidates must: have a strong commitment to promoting equality and social justice; have a demonstrated a commitment to contributing to community life; and provide a letter of recommendation from a sponsoring community group or voluntary organisation. Closing date: November 2nd 2015.

Sponsored by CESCA

€25 personal contribution: the participation of all successful candidates will be sponsored by Cork Equal & Sustainable Communities Alliance.

QQI AWARD

For Further Information:

Contact the Course Coordinator:
Jim Sheehan, SHEP (021) 4666 180
jim.sheehan@socialandhealth.com or visit: www.socialandhealth.com

